Teaching through Storytelling

The Golden Apple Foundation, in partnership with the Chicago History Museum and the National Museum of Mexican Art, extends a special invitation to teachers to participate in a two-week workshop that will teach techniques for effective and creative storytelling with an emphasis on Mexican culture.

When: July 7-18, 2008 Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Where: Chicago History Museum, 1601 N. Clark St. and National Museum of Mexican Art, 1852 W. 19th St.

- The workshop activity fee is $100. Upon successful completion of the workshop, each participant will receive 40 CPDUs, and CPS teachers are eligible for Lane Credit.
- Participants will also have the opportunity to create and develop a personal story, historical piece or folk tale. Instruction is provided by Golden Apple Award-winning teachers and staff members of both museums.
- The workshop ends with an exciting evening of food and stories.

What previous years' participants said:

"This workshop taught me how to hope. Gracias!"

"The workshop was an intense, hands-on, resourceful way to learn storytelling. I was impressed by the presenters' level of expertise and sensitivity toward the teachers. I left with tools of the trade of storytelling. I feel equipped."

"Because of the valuable information and teaching materials (hand-outs) in the workshop and the impromptu storytelling activities, I will be able to integrate them into many curricular areas: art, writing, reading, and social studies."

"I've been to many workshops – there is no comparison. This has been the Greatest."
